

ROUND TABLE

Comparative Literature, World Literature, and Translation in Multilingual Contexts

Wednesday, March 18, 2020

5 - 7 p.m.

Light reception: 5 p.m. Round-table: 5:30 p.m.

The Honors Commons

M.D. Anderson Library
University of Houston
4333 University Dr., Houston, TX 77204

Moderator :

Prof. Julie-Françoise Tolliver
Modern and Classical languages

Organizer:

Prof. Bhavya Tiwari
Modern and Classical languages

Prof. Francesca Orsini University of London

Francesca Orsini is professor of Hindi and South Asian Literature in the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS) at the University of London. She served as a faculty member at the University of Cambridge for several years. She was awarded a Mary I. Bunting Institute Fellowship by the Radcliffe Institute at Harvard University. Her extensive list of publications showcases her research about South Asian Literature.

SPEAKERS

Prof. Subramanian Shankar University of Hawai'i, Mānoa

Subramanian Shankar is an author, scholar, and translator. He has written novels and translated works from Tamil to English. He is a professor of English at the University of Hawai'i at Manoa. Professor Shankar was honored with Scholar-in-Residence at the University of Houston (Downtown), and his research interests are postcolonial literature, literature of immigration, film, and translation studies.

Open to the public

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON

The event is made possible by the Provost's 50-in-5 Faculty Award awarded to Dr. Bhavya Tiwari in Fall 2019. The reception is generously sponsored by Italian Studies, Modern and Classical Languages.